Course Description (Wounspe Oyakapi):

Detective Fiction provides learners with opportunities to begin their exploration into the creatively deductive world of mystery. As the semester progresses, it will acquaint them with the essential elements of fiction and, more specifically, the literary devices unique to the “subgenre” of the “whodunit.” Students will be expected to participate in the advanced level learning experience indicative of an upper-level course by initiating and maintaining in-depth leadership functions within the class while asserting their opinions and supporting their positions with tertiary critical analyses.

Prerequisites: Lit 203 Introduction to Literature or instructor's permission

Required Text and Materials:

Conan Doyle, Arthur. Hodgson, John A., ed. Sherlock Holmes: The Major Stories with Contemporary Essays. 1994. Bedford St. Martins: Boston. ISBN: 13-978-0-312-08945-0. ISBN: 10-0-312-08945-7.

Additional materials may be required as the course progresses.

Course Goal:

This course is designed to provide students with a review of fundamental literary concepts, devices, methodologies, and terms while enhancing their interest in and understanding of detective fiction as a literary art form.

Learning Objectives (Wounspe Taku Unspepi Kte Kin He Le E):

Upon the successful completion of this course students will be able to:

- Identify, define, and solve literary problems
- Analyze literature representative of detective fiction
- Locate and evaluate information utilizing current technology
- Communicate with accuracy and clarity
- Read, comprehend, retain, apply and utilize sources of information responsibly
- Develop an enhanced understanding of Lakota culture and philosophy within the broader context of a diverse global society as a result of the exploration of selections of detective fiction.

Assessment:

Learners' coursework will be assessed according to its qualitative and quantitative content utilizing the Humanities department's literature rubric and grade scale.

Instructional Methodology:

This course will be facilitated within OLC's online learning platform (Moodle, Virtual Campus). Students will be provided opportunities to participate in cooperative learning activities (virtual class discussions, et cetera) in addition to assignments which are designed for individual completion.

Course Rationale:

This course exists to assist students in the continuance of their understanding of the fundamentals of literary study and assist in the development of their understanding of literature focusing on detective fiction. Additionally, (Lit 423) Detective Fiction has been designed to assist students in the furtherance of their programs of study as an upper-level elective.

Homework:

According to the national average, each student should expect to spend two (nunpa) to three (yamni) hours out of class on discussion, reading and homework assignments each week for every hour of class time (each credit hour) in order to perform satisfactorily. Therefore, this three (yamni) credit-hour course should necessitate approximately six (sakpe) to nine (nadcinyunka) hours outside of the online classroom on required readings and homework. However, every student differs in her/his individual skills, educational background, experience, capability and personal goals; so, the amount of time you must dedicate to coursework outside of class can vary significantly from this national average.

Reading Load:

Reading will include approximately one (wanji) to two (nunpa) literary selections per week, in addition to chapters from the texts, handouts, and additional coursework as assigned.

Type & Amount of Writing Load:

Students can anticipate a variety of writing activities each week including (but not limited to) course journal entries, online class discussions, literary critiques and other essays.

Lakota Perspective Provided Through:

This course stresses Wolakotakiciapi of “learning Lakota ways of life in the community.” This course is based on the values of mutual respect and generosity (woohola na wochantognakapi), seeking to advance each individual’s knowledge through her/his continuing hard work (fortitude- wowalitake) and willingness to learn new information and viewpoints as well as demonstrating it by speaking in front of the group (bravery-woohitike). All of these values will be undertaken in an environment of complete truthfulness, trust, integrity, and humility. We will do this by embracing the teachings of our ancestors as we learn new ways. Waunspe wicakiyapi ki iglutanyan ihani unpi kun hena itan waunspe tokeca uha ayin kte.

Evaluation and Grading:

Learners should anticipate a moderate to heavy writing load each week throughout the semester. Typically, coursework will consist of class discussions, collaborative activities, critical essays, exams, individual information retrieval and research projects, quizzes, and student course journals.

Course Requirements, Expectations or Students:

Because OLC offers classes in three-hour blocks once per week (for everyone’s travel convenience), if you are absent from one OLC class session, it’s like missing three classes at another college. (Refer to the student handbook).

- Unannounced quizzes and graded class activities and exercises will be given; content can include any course material assigned up to and including the current session.
- Your coursework assignments must be turned in on the dates due to earn full credit.
- You are expected to participate in class discussion and collaborative activities; doing so provides evidence of your interest in and preparation for class. Also, active participation helps gauge the effectiveness of instruction and everyone’s level of comprehension of the material. Most importantly, fellow class members benefit from your opinions and insights. In addition, the questions you ask may be about the same topic with which other students are having difficulty. By helping yourself, you are helping them as well.
